TIPS & ADVICE

Expertise tips to maximize your show experience

Things to Do Onsite

1. Take photos of your stand
2. Collect a couple of copies of the director /Onsite guide
3. Think about future them ideas
4. Note things missing from your stand/Display
5. Reflect on your objections
6. Check you have the right staff
7. Make sure you have after-hour contact numbers from all suppliers

SOCIAL MEDIA

If possible post photos and commentary using your Social Media Outlets each day of the event. Not only does this send the message that you are proactive, potential visitors can see what you may have new or featured at the event – it might just ensure they visit your stand!

TIPS FOR A GOOD PIC! Taking a pic with your mobile phone? No problem! Just follow these simple tips from our design team!

We recommend that you send us at least 5 high resolution images. The more we have to choose from, the more opportunity you have to be mentioned in visitor EDM's (emails)! These emails are sent to thousands of people. By providing us with high resolution/ up close photos we are more likely to use them!

- Pinks, lime greens, and yellows show very nicely. The more colourful the better!
- Make sure there is enough light when taking the photo.
- Only photograph what you want to highlight (up close) and be aware of a distracting background. A plain white background works well.
- Take 2-3 photos for each image you want to send and try taking them at different angles.
- Send your pics in FULL SIZE when your phone asks you! Leave the cropping and adjusting to us!

STEPS TO MAXIMISE YOUR RESULTS AT THE EVENT.

QUALIFY the visitor: what do they do or what are they responsible for? Are they the CEO, a technician or, worse, a competitor?

UNDERSTAND what they are looking for at the Exhibition. Establish how you can help them.

IDENTIFY how you can help them and if you can't maybe refer them on or disconnect.

CONNECT/COMMUNICATE. Agree when you will contact them to follow up, and with what.

SEPARATE. Move them on. Once the above is achieved, shake them by the hand and move on so you can service the next potential sale.

EXHIBITOR BADGE

Make sure all staff wear their name badge clearly visible – high on the right hand side, and not at a right angle or askew. This ensures eye contact is made when they shake hands. Discourage staff from wearing badges at waist level because they think it looks trendy; gazing into nether regions will certainly make

PREPARATION & PLANNING

Visitors feel uncomfortable.

PUT YOUR BEST FOOT FORWARD

- Have a defined policy for what your staff are to wear
- Make sure your uniform has a range of clothes to cater for all weather conditions
- Specify exact standards for employee supplied items of clothing

SOME STAFF APPEARANCE RULES TO THINK ABOUT

HAIR: Should be clean and controlled. Long hair may look more professional worn up.

FACIAL HAIR: Staff with beards and moustaches should be trimmed and tidy. Otherwise, clean shaven.

Nails: Should be clean and well-manicured. If polish is worn, it needs to compliment the uniform and theme.

Make-up: Should be businesslike and professional.

Jewellery: Some companies may have policies regarding facial piercings which requires them to be removed or covered. Overall piercings should be tasteful and not intrusive.

MANAGING VISITORS

1. The Opening Approach

Ask some exploratory questions to establish rapport. First impressions create strong impressions. Your initial approach to a visitor should establish rapport and enable you to qualify them.

2. Controlling your time

Time is a luxury that few exhibit staff have. You need to think in terms of how many minutes the event is open for rather than hours.

3. Multiple Visitors

Often you may be making a presentation to one visitor, while others have a nearby listening in. Acknowledge them and make them feel that they can listen in and be part of it.

4. Asking a visitor to wait

It may not be possible to include other visitors in your presentation. Yet someone may be waiting to speak to you and you don't want them to leave. Ask them to wait or arrange a time to speak to them.

5. Dealing with unwanted shoes

Not all visitors are leads you want. Sometimes unwanted ones will hang around your stand or you might be subjected to the complaints of a disgruntled customer. It is important you have a system in place to break away from people like this.

6. Overcoming Objections

Acknowledge the objection and empathise with their concerns. Ask questions to clarify and determine the true obstacle. If you don't know the answer to their question, be honest and admit it.

TOP 7 RULES FOR SELLING AT AN EXHIBITION

1. Look authoritative – that is, dress to look as though you are obviously competent, capable, knowledgeable and able to give advice on what you are selling.
2. Defensive gestures - Don't use any! Especially crossing your arms or legs, or hands in pockets.

PREPARATION & PLANNING

3. Body Language - Firstly, you need to nod your head repetitively as you're talking.
4. Stand - On a stand – do exactly that – stand. Don't sit and read newspaper or spend too much time on your phone.
5. Shake - Shake hands when the opportunity presents itself and when you shake, keep your palms straight and give the same amount of pressure you receive
6. Use positive Speech - Rather than bluntly stating the cost of a product, look at a vocabulary of words you could use.
7. Smile - Have a ready smile and don't be afraid to show your teeth.
8. Back up – Make sure you have an after-hours number/mobile from your suppliers, in the event there is a problem during the show.
